Step to the Left

As we start the 2004-2005 school year in a new setting, we bring more than 50 years of history with us. The memories and traditions that were created in the past and those that we will create make L-S unique.

L-S is not just a place. L-S is the students and faculty, exchanging ideas and challenging each other to succeed. It is a spectrum of beliefs, backgrounds, and personalities. It is a collection of all the good times and embarrassing moments. L-S is a community, vibrant and always changing.

We invite you to step into a new L-S, and discover what it means to you...

Legacy

Some Famous L-S Alumni

At a time when we are moving into a new building, it is time to look back at some of the people who have gone on to acknowledge themselves in the world and show people what L-S can create:

DIANA GOLDEN

After Diana Golden overcame the loss of her right leg to cancer at the age of 12, she re-learned to ski. Diana began skiing competitively at L-S. She graduated in 1980 and received the faculty plaque: L-S's highest award. Her senior quote was "Ambition knows no Bounds." In 1988, she led the US Women's Disabled Slalom team at the Winter Olympics. Before her death in 2001 at the age of 38, she established the Golden Opportunities Fund to provide financial assistance for disabled athletes.

CHRIS EVANS

After his graduation from L-S in 1999, Chris emerged in the acting business in his first role on the 2000 TV series, "Opposite Sex", and also appeared on "Boston Public". In 2001, he starred as jock Jake Wyler in "Not Another Teen Movie".

His role as a high-schooler continued as he portrayed one of the seniors who stole the answers to the SATs in "The Perfect Score" in 2003. In 2004 he matured for his role in "Cellular". Currently he's working on his role as The Human Torch in the newest Marvel Comics' movie, "The Fantastic Four". The Evans family reside in Sudbury

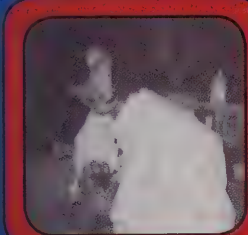

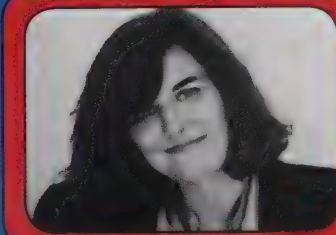

PAULA POUNDSTONE

Paula Poundstone is an extremely successful comedian. For L-S, in the '80s, she mc'd 'Black and White Night'(s). She has performed on cable television shows. She won the ACE awards in 1992 and 1993 for her standup routines. She has also appeared in numerous TV series including Science Court (1997) and Home Movies (1999) and on the panel of "To Tell the Truth". In the late 90's she wrote a regular column for Mother Jones Magazine. Poundstone attended Lincoln-Sudbury in 1979.

MIKE GORDON

Mike Gordon graduated from L-S in 1982. After his graduation from UVM, he joined the band 'Phish' in its earliest stages as their new bass guitarist. Phish quickly became one of the largest local bands in history. They played their last live concert this past summer in Boston. The Gordon family still resides in Sudbury. Mike's parents help design the back drop that appears behind the band in their concerts.

THEY MIGHT BE GIANTS

John Linnell and John Flansberg of "TMBG" met each other while attending L-S in the early 70's. They both worked on the FORUM usually drawing the comic strips. While Linnell was a musician at L-S, Flansberg was not. After graduation, they parted, and in 1981 they reunited in NYC. They formed their band "They Might Be Giants" and released their first CD. In 1994 they came back to L-S to do a free concert to raise money for MLKAP. They wrote and performed the tv theme of "Malcom in the Middle" and continue to perform.

MIKE CROEL AND JOE SIMS

In 1986 Croel and Sims were members of the first L-S Super Bowl team, and went to the Super Bowl again in 1987, winning both. Graduating from L-S in 1987, both went onto play for the University of Nebraska. After college Croel went onto play for the Denver Broncos as line backer and was the NFL's Rookie of the Year in 1991. Sims went onto play for the Atlanta Falcons as a tackle and guard. Joe's family live in Sudbury.

L-S By The Numbers

10 Number of stairwells in building.

1800 The amount of students the new building is "supposed" to hold.

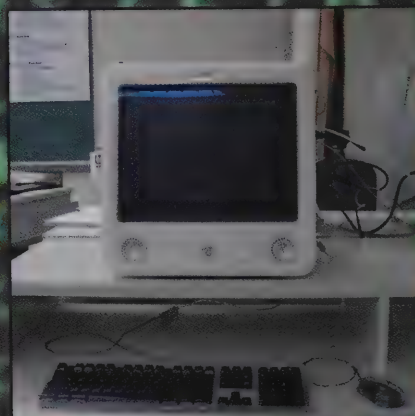

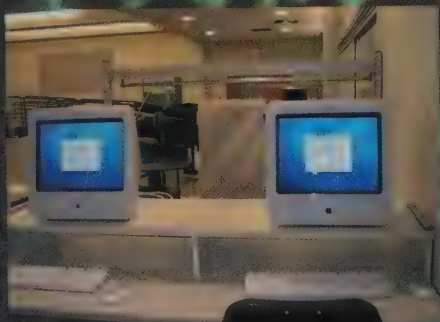

470 Number of white boards in rooms

716 Number of steps in the school.

Taking A Step Back

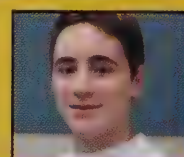

A Look at What We Had vs. What we Have

The Auditorium

"I like the balcony but the auditorium doesn't seem as big."
Nicole Lombardo (07)

"It's really modern looking, almost space age." Alex Campanella (07)

The Cafeteria

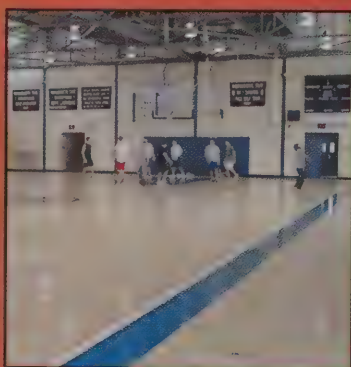

"The seating is nice, but the actual cafeteria is like a zoo with only one cage." Daniel Meretsky (06)

"The Cafeteria is fine! But it smells like really bad eggs in the morning." Tim Anderson (05)

The Gym(s)

"Since there are more, it's better so more teams can practice. They are really big." Tim Dingman (07)

"It's nice to have so much space to practice in. Plus, the balconies are cool." James Davis (06)

The Library

"It seems to function alot better since there are sound blocking walls, making it quieter and more peaceful." Christopher Cheng (06)

"The Library is alot more modern, more cubicles and has a great view of the ... parking lot." Patrick Spiegel (06)

What Do You Think of the New School?

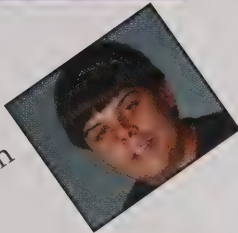

It's very impressive. Although it is nice, new, and clean, it lacks the coziness of the old school." Dan Klein (07)

"I think that the new school is way too big, cold, and sterile. It reminds me of Curtis [Middle School]." Marissa Herzog (07)

"I liked the old school better because it was easier to find people when you need to find them." Bryce Shulman (07)

"It's huge, and very shiny. In my opinion, too shiny." Ryan Joyner (07)

"You need a Maurader's Map to get anywhere in the building. I can never find my english class." Hilary Lockhart (05)

"I get lost really easily because every hall looks the same." Karen Howard (06)

The New School 2004-????

The Old School 1956-2004

"I think that the classrooms are not designed with students in mind - there are not enough windows to look out of which students need to keep in touch with nature." Susan Frommer

"I don't see as many students anymore, since the hallways are so spread out." Mark Sobkowitz

What Kind of Student Are You?

Take some time out of your busy schedule to answer a few questions that may help you to discover what kind of L-S student you are.

1. What do you do during your free block?

- A) Sleep, I was up late last night partying, and by partying, I mean studying
- B) Doing homework, because there was so much good tv on last night
- C) Wander around Building D aimlessly trying to cause trouble
- D) Go to the cafe and admire the seniors as they walk by

2. If you won $1 million, would you?

- A) Make a down payment on the school and strive to declare every day a non-working, party day
- B) Donate the money to a charity that supported orphaned children around the world
- C) Spend it all on lavish items, that display my true greed
- D) Spend the money on the latest entertainment system

3. Where do you hang out at school?

- A) The Spot, you know that place where everyone, who is anyone hangs out all day, during their free time, or more often during class
- B) The Library, because it is a place where I can work in peace and quiet and be seen, while it is only a short distance from most of the school so that way I am almost never late for class and am early most of the time
- C) Under the Stairs, or at least I used to hang out there, but there are so many stairs in this new building. So, one week we are hanging out one place, and another week we are hanging out at another set of stairs until we spend time at all of the stairs in Buildings A-B-C.
- D) In the Lab working on things that are crucial to the development of future technologies around Sudbury and the world

4. What do you consider your greatest accomplishment at L-S?

- A) Watching L-S rise to the top of the Dual County League in all sports
- B) Getting A's in every class, AP, Accelerated, or otherwise, and giving back to the community doing things that I support
- C) Doing what I want, when I want
- D) Designing a time system that links up to all of the L-S wall clocks so that when we need to change the clocks twice a year, it will just happen automatically, and we'll all be on time

5. What is your most embarrassing thing that happened to you at L-S?

- A) Picked up a piece of food dropped on the floor of the Cafe and ate it, only to have the nurse see you and tell you just how unsanitary that is
- B) You signed up for Latin, and it took you three weeks to realize that it was ancient Latin and not Spanish spoken in Latin America
- C) Tried out for the LSB Players as a dare and ended up getting the lead role
- D) You broke your nose and damaged several major organs in an effort to prove to Mr. Sobkowitz that the so called "laws of physics" don't apply to you

6. What do you do on Friday nights?

- A) Out doing what I do best: party with my friends at the abandoned warehouse over by the abandoned mill about a mile's canoe trip up the Sudbury River
- B) Studying for my finals even though they aren't for nearly three months
- C) Stay after hours at school and "misplace" all the teacher editions of the text books
- D) Kill Night Elfs with your Paladin. (Translation: Playing games over the internet with other socially challenged teenagers)

7. What is your favorite drink?

- A) A mix of Vodka, Scotch and Rum, with your favorite food coloring added, called the "Jackhammer of Doom"
- B) Milk, must keep osteoporosis at bay
- C) Jones, I won't drink anything that is bottled by Coke or by Pepsi
- D) A protein shake, gotta bulk up so I won't get hazed

8. What is your ideal vacation spot?

- A) Bermuda, clear water and sandy beaches... and only 2 hours away by air
- B) Zimbabwe, not for the scenery but to study human interactions...and only 12 hours away by air and 24 hours by jeep, and 8 hours by pack mule
- C) My basement, got plenty to do there, and only a few steps away
- D) Silicon Valley, 'nuff said

9) You find a test that you are going to have the next day, what do you do with it?

- A) Make copies and sell it to people as "Study Guides" (it's a stretch but still applies)
- B) Find the teacher or Housemaster and immediately return it to them and get extra credit
- C) It depends, is it the final?
- D) Track down the teacher using state of the art technology and then return it to them in a sealed envelope not having peeked at it

10. What movie have you seen recently?

- A) Team America: World Police, it was awesome and hilarious
- B) Kinsey, for the informative nature of the film
- C) Anything that is not part of the main stream, I am what I am and there is no changing it
- D) The Incredibles, not for the movie but for the awesome special effects

The Results are...

Mostly A's: Wow, you are too cool. Can we be more like you? Please?

Mostly B's: You are well on your way to money, power and socio-ecological consciousness. You even know what socio-ecological consciousness is.

Mostly C's: You run with the rebellious crowd and will soon be fighting for freedom in the hills of some remote country.

Mostly D's: You are in the 1% of people who are geniuses and will soon invent a device that will allow you to secretly control the thoughts of people and make them do your bidding on the subconscious level, sorta like Bill Gates, if you know what I mean.

KEY PADS

Numerous digital touchpads located throughout the school protect equipment, paperwork, and certain areas of the school.

They randomly generate alpha numeric numbers and display them in the squares. Beware not to play with them or you may get some undesired results.

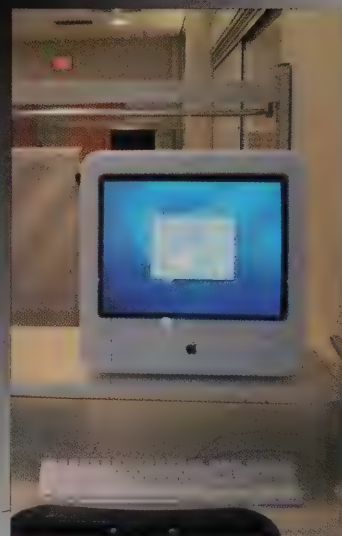

In the event of an emergency, doors in the building can be closed off to trap the fire and prevent it from spreading. In combination with the rest of the fire system, you can be assured you will be kept safe at L-S.

FIRE DOORS

TVs

Nine Mitsubishi 42" (40" viewable) TVs located throughout the school display announcements, notices, and other relevant information.

They are flat panel, LCD (liquid crystal display). You can't change the channel from the front, so don't even try.

There are a total of 1200 computers in the new L-S.

There are a number of different types including eMac's, G5's, and Powerbooks.

All the computers are internet-ready and give every student the capability of their own customized workspace.

COMPUTERS

Technology

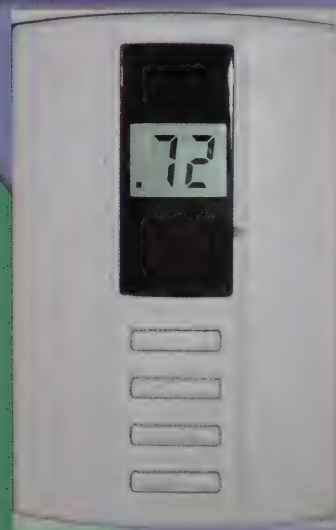

at L-S

SWIPE CARDS

The new school has come equipped with swipe cards with can be used in place of keys and locks. Using the special cards, you simply pass it over the detector and the door will unlock. Each card has its own magnetic strip and can be adjusted to allow access into any combination of rooms.

In combination with the other security devices in place in the new school, keys are quickly becoming a thing of the past.

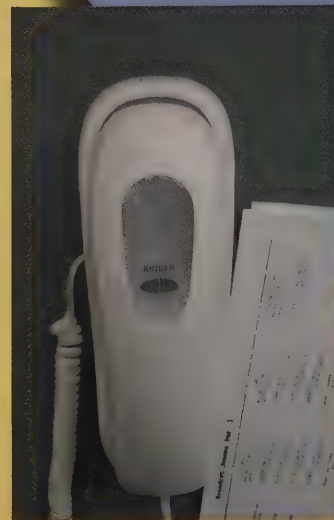

TEMP SYSTEM

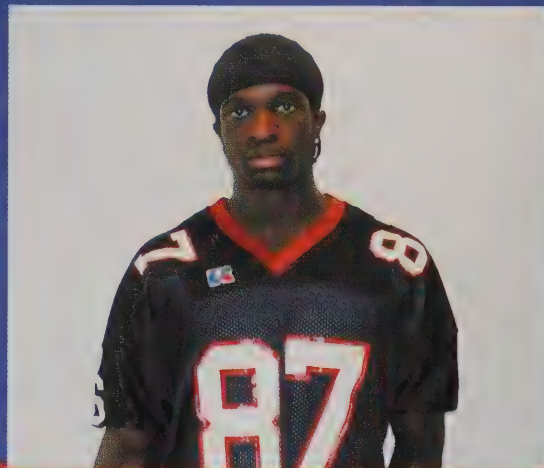

Thermostats are now located in every room in the new building. They can be programmed to keep the entire school at exact temperatures. Another addition is air conditioning in the new building. This new system will be sure to keep you comfortable and ready to learn.

PHONES

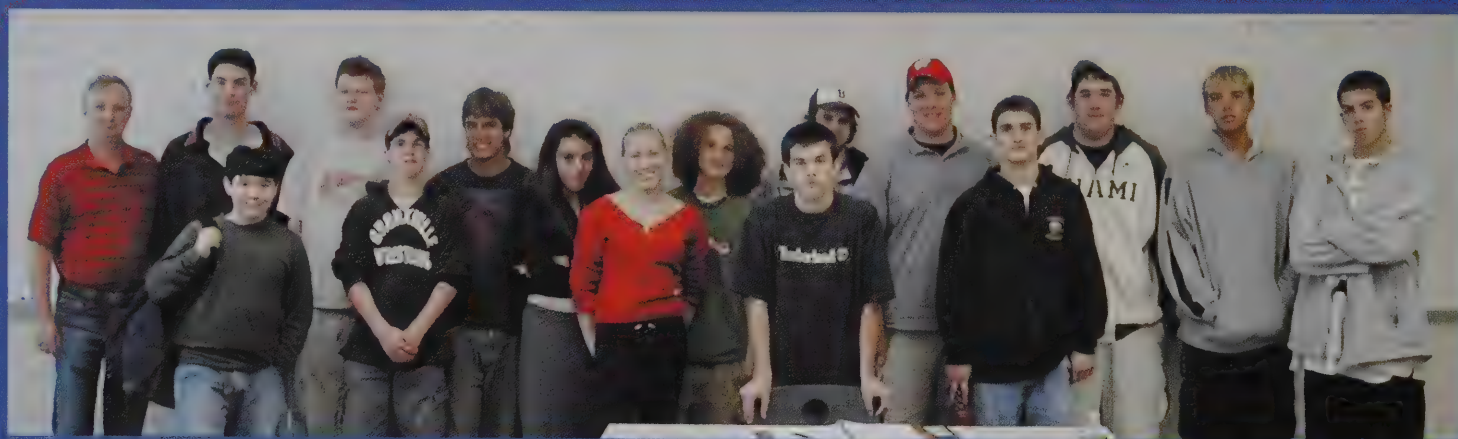

Phones have been added in every classroom as the main communication throughout the school. These wall-mounted phones can reach any room in the school, or an outside line. This is just another way that technology makes our lives easier.

ELECTION 2004: YOU DECIDE

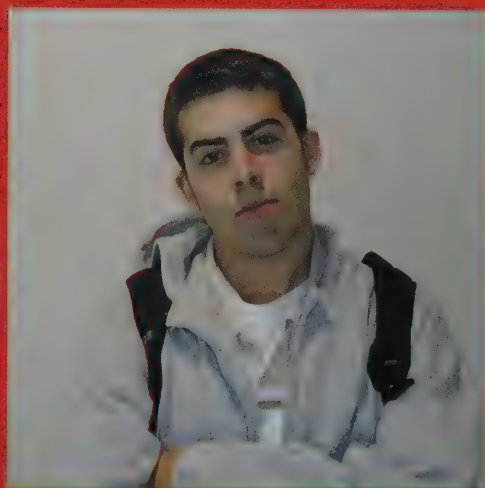

Isaiah Davis (06) responds with a powerful "Kerry" when asked who he wants to win the election.

The 2004 Young Republicans Club makes its bid for a reelection

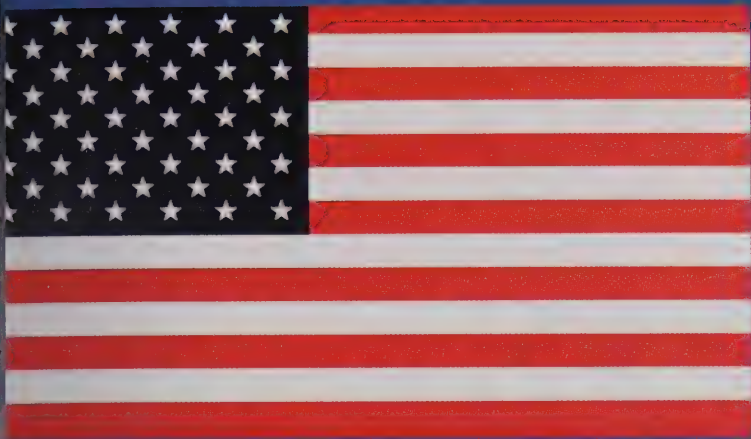

Curt Lawhorn (05) of the Young Republican Club makes his loyalties known announcing proudly, "Four more years."

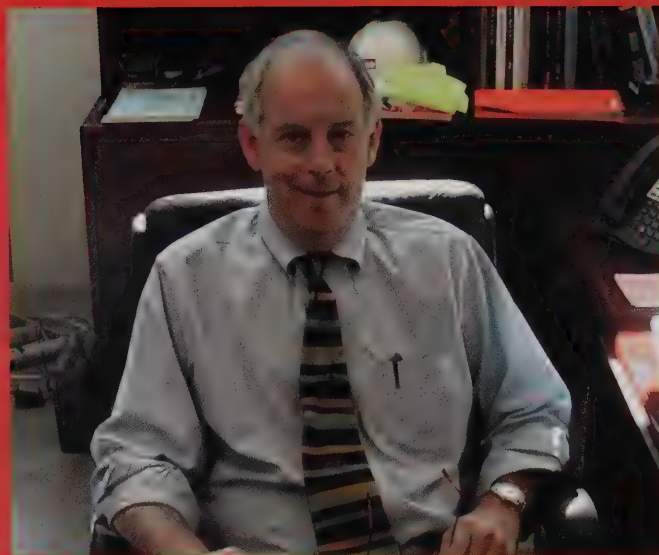

Dan Glanz (07) says "I really wouldn't vote for either of them."

Kevin Aravind (07) declares "I am a fervent Kerry supporter."

"I like Bush because of his senior healthcare plans" says Ben Silton (07)

Superintendent Dr. Ritchie states, "I'm deeply concerned about the upcoming election because, more than any other time in my life I can remember, I think our nation is at a crossroads. I mean this in terms of how we conduct ourselves in the world, how we are perceived in the world, and how much we can lead through moral and diplomatic, rather than simply, military strength."

For the first time in campaign history, MTV has launched a campaign known as the Choose or Lose campaign which is targeted to persuade young voters to do their civic duty.

Tim Dingman (07) shows his loyalty as he says, "I think this is Nader's strongest year."

A Day in the Life of METCO

It's a long ride, but somebody's gotta do it.

Getting off of the bus. Ready for a long day!!

Hard at work.....

Using the computers....working oh-so hard.

Late to class?.... umhummm!

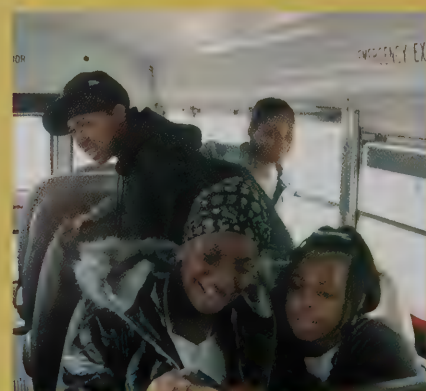

Interacting in CPR.

ROLL OUT.....!!

Get on da bus.....

Finally...

"Metco has been an amazing experience in the past 4 years for me. I am happy the I got the opportunity to be a part of it because I learned a lot. It will be very sad when I leave."
-Sharina Byrd

"This is my 10th year in METCO, it has been a good experience. It is a chance for Boston students to get a better education."
-Richelle Hinds

"For twelve years we have sacrificed our time and effort b y travelling 25 miles away from our home, but in the end it was worth it."
-Tony Washington and Tamera Brooks

"Metco gave me a chance for a better education and to see the world first hand. Now that I'm leaving, Metco-gave me the resources to be a better person."
-Kerisha Owens

New vs. Old Hangouts

The new cafe has kept the tables from the old school, but not much else is the same. From a lack of a ceiling to the view, the cafe is quite the place to hang out. Here students eat lunch and talk to their friends in the new cafe.

With more stairwells in the new building, more people have started hanging out under the stairs. Some stairways though, have been kept off limits because of firecodes. Here a group of freshmen have a heated discussion under the stairs.

Some thought that the thing they would miss the most about the old LS was the courtyards. However, the contractors have done a good job making the spaces between buildings a place to hangout. Here some students eat lunch between the buildings.

Here Patrick Spiegel (06), Michael Tzovras (06), Peter Jones (06) and Jeffrey Wurm (06) hang out on the rug outside of the library. They like it there because they can keep their eye on the announcements.

Hanging out in the halls is no longer as comfortable as it once was without rugs, but it is still possible. Here 3 students are hanging out in the B-C connector, with the door leading to nowhere in the background.

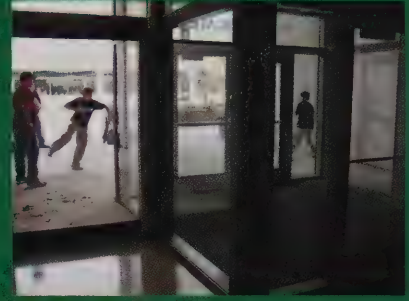

Here is "The rug" looking down from the third floor. It looks pretty comfortable down there.

On the right, Steven Giorgetti (08) and Tyler Wimberly (08) play "Capball," baseball with a bottle as the bat, outside A building. This current game, with a tie score, was too intense to get a closeup, so the picture had to be taken through the glass. On the left, Eric Chi (06) and Annelies Kamen (06) eat lunch in the front of the new school.

Although 4 Corners was destroyed with the rest of the old school, Seniors have found a new place to hangout. The "rug" in building B has become very popular, even though it is still littered with some storage boxes.

The Library has changed locations, but its popularity as a place where students can study has stayed the same. Here Paige Salvia (05), Gabe Brooks-Harris (05) and Jonathon Sege (05) are working hard in the new library.

Some hangouts just haven't taken off.

While other hangouts have.

Senior

What does it mean to be a senior? The experience of being a senior is more than the tests, the dreadful college process, the anxieties over our future, the seniority and therefore superiority over the underclassmen... It is an equilibrium between growing up and holding on. It is the exploration of something different. But it is also remembering the family, friends, and teachers who have supported us. Memories of the laughs we shared, the times when someone reached out to us just when we needed it, the mistakes we made, the triumphs- they are all part of the senior experience. So cheers 2005 and good luck!

Junior PRom

Where to go for the after party?

Oh, the hassles, the troubles!

Yet, when prom night comes, all the mirror-checks and fluffing seem worth it, to step into this one magical night. The smiles, the dances, the music, being with friends and dates, even the food- oh, what a night!

Sophomore

Sophomore year, no longer the lower rung of the school, but still unable to drive. A curious year when you are no longer made fun of, but do not have the right to make fun of anyone else. The year spent basically looking ahead to junior year and laying the groundwork for the rest of your high school career.

One word to describe your sophomore year?

Freshman

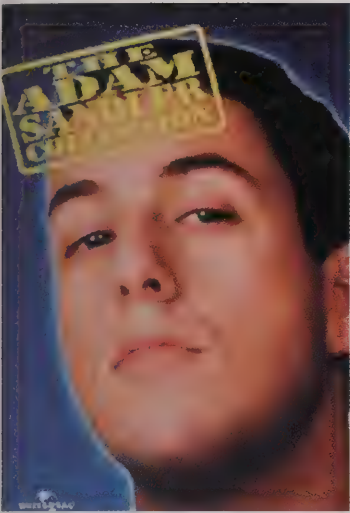

THE BOTTOM STEP OF THE LADDER:

Freshmen. What's that word that one usually associates with freshmen? Ah, yes. Obnoxious. That's blatant stereotyping, though. Of course, it's true, but . . . no. Not really. Only say, forty percent. But seriously, freshmen year is a year of contrasts and new experiences. It's never fun coming to a whole new school and getting used to a whole new system. For kids coming from middle school, though, it's a release. Middle school can sometimes be confused with MCI Concord. Nobody likes major changes, but you adapt. Another key freshman word: ADAPT. You learn to do that pretty quick. After that, it's all downhill (in a good sense, that is).

Things begin to fall into a groove, and life is easy. That's when they get obnoxious. No, I'm kidding. Sort of. Anyway, there are a few drawbacks to being a freshman. (A few readers gasp in horror: "a few?!?!"). Unless you're the second coming of Tom Brady, you usually end up playing on a freshmen team. Not a lot of fan support for frosh teams. There are more courses freshmen can't take than there are courses they can take. And, of course, freshmen are treated like the lowest primal form of scum on the planet by most upperclassmen. By the end of freshmen year, you know what's going on. You're 'hip' to the big L-S scheme. Things be good. And, best of all, you're a sophomore. And, now for your perusal, the future Sophomores of America . . .

Baby I just don't get it
Do you enjoy being hurt?
I know you smelled the perfume,
he make-up on his shirt
You don't believe his stories
You know that they're all lies Bad as you are, you stick around and I just don't know why...

Step by step, heart to heart, left
right left
We all fall down...
Step by step, heart to heart, left
right left
We all fall down like toy soldiers
Bit by bit, torn apart, we never win
But the battle wages on for toy soldiers

Name That Tune?

Automatic, supersonic,
hypnotic, funky fresh
Work my body, so melodic
This beat flows right through my chest
Everybody, Ma and Papi
came to party
Grab somebody, work your body, work your body
Let me see you _____

I walk a lonely road
The only one that I have ever known
Don't know where it goes
But it's home to me and I walk alone
I walk this empty street
On the _____
Where the city sleeps and I'm the only one and I walk alone

There's always that one person
That will always have your heart
You never see it coming
Cause you're blinded
from the start
Know that you're that one for me
It's clear for everyone to see Ooh baby ooh you'll always be _____

Staff

They teach, they coach, they advise, and they even administer detentions. And whether they notice it or not, the faculty at L-S becomes an influential part of a student's high school life. Just about every member has been agonized over at one time or another, or many, during their career at L-S. It's not typical of an elementary school or junior-high that you can actually hang out with a teacher. They know what they're doing, most of the time at least. Sometimes it's because they've been there for five, ten, twenty, and some even forty years. Whether you believe it or not, the L-S faculty is truly something to boast about.

What is FATA?

The Initials Stand for Fine, Applied, and Technical Arts and consists of 14 instructors in the subject areas of Drama, Applied Technology, Music, Visual Art, and Media Arts. Their curriculum consists of 47 elective courses, including courses in automotive repair, acting and directing, choral and instrumental music, jewelry and metal smithing, pottery, drawing and painting, and filmmaking to name a few. The FATA classes are heterogenous-including freshmen through seniors and students with various sets of skill and ability.

JOHN BILL

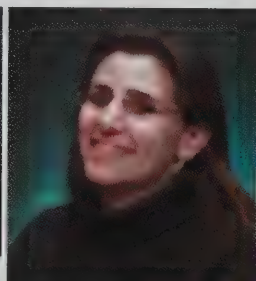

JOHNSON teaches a number of drama classes, Stagecraft, Public Speaking, and Improvisation. He also teaches various independent studies including advanced acting, advanced stagecraft, costume, and makeup. He enjoys hiking, basketball, and music. John sings and plays the bass for a local blues band called Two Toned Pony.

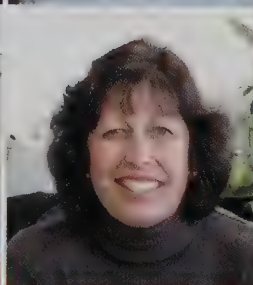

PLOTT teaches English, Drama, Acting, and Drama II- Acting & Directing. He has been at L-S for as long as Paula Wolfe, but not quite as long as Joe Pacenka. Bill has been involved in more than 100 plays as tech director, actor, or director with the LSB players. He is known far and wide for his patience.

TOM GRANDPREY

Tom is FATA's new Instrumental Music teacher. He teaches orchestra, Concert Band, Jazz B and, Jazz Combo, and Popular Song Writing. Recently, Tom performed an impromptu rendition of "Happy Birthday" on the tuba for Paul Sarapas at the Sky Bar and Grill.

BILL NICHOLSON

Bill teaches Concert Concert, Chamber Singers, Vocal Jazz, Men's Choir, Harmony (Women's Choir), and Music Theory. Bill considers himself to be a patient man with a purpose.

He loves to compose and arrange music. Bill believes the effect of the artistic process on the human consciousness is the most effective way for diverse cultures to find common ground.

Joe has been at L-S for 40 years. He is an elder statesman and FATA wise man. He teaches woodworking and has run five marathons.

Well, Ladies and Gentleman, here's to one of the best teams this school has ever seen, as well as the end to yet another glorious season. No more hills, no more repeats, no more strides, no more Franklin Park and no more long runs. Who'd have thought that we would run in six inches of snow one race, and in sunny 65 degree weather the next? We were this close to taking DCL, but no worries, 'cause in 2005 the DCL and Class B titles are ours. Remember: We ride together, we die together, and most importantly, CDE.

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY

Whoever said running doesn't cost a thing?
 Racing spikes from marathon sports: 60 bucks
 Pre-meet power bars: $1.25
 Naked man at Walden: 10 minutes of lost sight
 Mr. Mayaris encounter with a swarm of bees: 50 doctor visits. McMahon's pervert comments: a year's worth of humiliation Wading in Walden: 20 min of hypothermia Two Dozen Krispy Kremes: 3 sorry freshmen Team basketball game: another trip to the hospital Emma's long night of pimp pimp: 1/2 completed bracelet McMahon's speech before warm up: practice delayed till 5 Another almost catch by Terri: 1 belly flop into the dumpster Constant Freshman gossip: the comfort of silence. A simple order of Chinese food: 4 hours of debate Seven verses of an inspirational song: 1 sobbing man 10 hardcore weeks of XC training O. Priceless
 The story is one of an old man, an old man and a sea.
 He was a man of wisdom, a man of two colors. One color was his competitive spirit, his lime green drive. The other was his determination, the pink hue of an exhausted runner. Now this man only had one will in his life, to be part of something bigger, to be part of a team. His name was Santiago and he was an inspiration to us all.

 This round old man was tired and could have easily retired his seams into the darkness of a garage somewhere, but he decided to take that final voyage, a hopeful trip in search of that big catch. He endured much through his journey including countless obstacles and strange sights, new to his ageless eyes. There were the waves of injuries, and the vicious Newton South sharks always looking for the kill. He faced all types of weather and even a swarm of bees. When times were tough, a single sight would lift his spirits, it was a pack of shirtless guys racing around him, it somehow was the only remedy
 With every step he took, there was this buzzing in his ear following him, a daily reminder that each little story could someday be written down in a history book. Well it was a voyage to be remembered, a journey worthy enough to be told as an epic. It is an epic written by its warriors, scripted through a season of team dedication and ageless memories. Thank you to all of the authors.

What can I say, XC boys, its been real. From the bottom to the top, we proved that anybody can get it done, and we did. Whether it was on the fields at GB, the back nine at Leo J, the candyshop, or on the great slopes of Nashoba at 2:30 in the morning proposing to the most wonderful woman in the world, we threw it down. In four years, we've come a long way. I don't have time to write quotes so I'll just offer some parting advice: Never give up crackers, the ski team is only a family if you make it that way. It's yours if you want it, so take it. Good luck.

What a Wild and Crazy season its been. We started off the year strong, hillbouncing up mount taylor and squatting all the way down. We challenged the trackies dominating the football field with JP's Ladders. When snow finally came, we turned to our new home, Weston Ski Track. Without a coach, we helped each other to master the technique. New obstacles like putting on skis and making the first steps were quickly overcome and we flung ourselves into the back nine. Dresses in spandex and ready to kill, ninj style, we showed the school what skiing was really about. At states, we kept you up all night with scary stories and pre race gossip sessions before dominating the hill at notchview. Throughout he season you girls proved your heart and endurance and have helped lead LS to one of the best seasons its had in years.

We love you all, Terri and Katie

Hey Girls, Congrats on a great season. We just want to take a moment to mention a few Animal Moments of the year. The first and foremost of course was crushing Newton South to dust. Every tear rolling down Coach Mechesney's face poured liquid drops of rainbows into our hearts. Yes, it was a sweet championship, almost as sweet a sensation as those daily track injections. We practice while high on track and the marks on our arms only prove our dependence upon the newly popular addiction. Every day we battled the cold where even the sprinters were forced to warm-up outside, finally learning the art of layering up. The few days that we thought we escaped, Mel would whip out the guns and lead an army with shovels in hand down to the track. With our very own ice track we found a new danger to the sport, one of sprained ankles, bruised legs, and face flat wipe outs. The danger never ceased because even during a casual lap around the school, a surprise ambush of snowballs flew through the air. Maybe the throwers escaped to a safer world, with Ms. A leading them in yoga meditations and recess basketball games. Even with our different coaches and sectioned events, we all remained united, like a 34 yard ribbon. We flowed together in the wind as a red, white, and blue flag of spirit, known to all as LS track.

STUDENTS, STAFF MOVE IN, GET SETTLED

After nearly 50 years on one location, Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School has a new home.

It's still located at 390 Lincoln Rd, but the address along with the school have moved a few hundred yards to the west, and into a striking new, $73 million building, a third larger than the old one.

The new building sports an impressive array of facilities, including a beautiful new auditorium, music and choral practice rooms, enhanced art facilities, new technology shops, and five gyms.

Because of new state school construction and reimbursement rules, the new L-S may be the last architect-designed school building in the state for some time.

Groundbreaking for the project took place during the spring of 2002, after plans for renovation and expansion of the old school proved impractical. Construction lasted for almost 2 years.

The senior class entered the school for the first time on September 8th followed by orientations for the other grades. All students came to the first regular day of school on September 13th.

The school was officially dedicated at a public "open house" on September 19. Just about all students and staff that the Forum spoke to could agree on at least few things: the new building was large, somewhat confusing at first with its multi-storied structure and new spaces, and very bright, with natural light pouring through the two building connectors and light wells that run as high as the building itself.

Negative comments which were reported in the Globe West focused on the reduced chances of bumping into friends or colleagues and the sometimes overwhelming stark whiteness of the new building. "It's not as homey as the old place," one student said to the Globe.

Still, many touches were put into the new school that reflect L-S culture. Carpeted hangouts are provided for students in many nooks and crannies of the building. One reproduction of an old L-S mural has been put up, but everyone understands that it will take many years to decorate a space this large.

THEFT EPIDEMIC RAISES ALARM AT L-S

BY ANNE NIEMI

The issue of theft at Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School has become a serious problem in the last several months. While MP3 players, CD players, wallets, money, cameras, and cell phones continue to be the most popular stolen items, thievery has recently spread to more expensive school and staff property.

On Friday, October 29, while science teacher Bethany Bernasconi was helping students in a classroom, her computer was stolen from her office. All the teachers using the office claimed to have locked the door before they left. The staff searched that afternoon, but the computer has yet to be recovered and the culprit remains unfound. The school's insurance does not cover the cost of the laptop even though it was being used for school purposes.

In another incident of expensive theft, science teacher William Pegram found an LCD projector that belonged to the Science department stolen from his classroom on Monday, November 1. He remembers locking his classroom the Friday before the theft and returning to a locked room on Monday. The absence of the projector has proven to be a significant detriment to the entire Science department.

Over this same weekend, two ibook laptop computers and an LCD projector were stolen from the main history department office, which was also locked on Friday afternoon. A week later on Wednesday, November 10, another ibook laptop was taken from a classroom during the actual class period.

Additionally, there have recently been three cases of theft of L-S apparel from the school store.

None of these thefts will be dealt with lightly. The theft of any item worth more than $250 is considered grand larceny and a misdemeanor according to Massachusetts state law. This means that if found, the thief would be fined and possibly sentenced to jail time. If a student is found responsible, the consequences include a period of suspension, loss of free time during school, payment of restitution, and possible expulsion. Administrators also reserve the right to report any instances to the Sudbury Police Department.

The L-S disciplinary code states, "Thefts hurt the whole community. Preventing theft and reporting it is everyone's responsibility." Students should know that there is a theft report procedure geared towards finding stolen items expediently. If you realize an item has been stolen, fill out a theft form at your house office and turn it in to your housemaster as soon as possible. In such a large school, it is almost impossible for administrators to protect everyone's belongings. East housemaster Leslie Grey wants students to recognize that theft is a full-fledged problem at L-S and could happen to anyone. "Kids need to be responsible and aware that if they drop their bag somewhere, it can easily be gone through. Unfortunately, this is just the reality."

UTILITY COSTS, CLOUD SCHOOL HORIZON

MADELINE WELSH

Reaching the forefront of discussions are issues relating to the costs of powering the new Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School building. Up to $60,000 is being spent on the building's electricity bills per month, compared to $18,000 per month in the old school. According to Superintendent/principal Dr. John Ritchie, however, the concerns are no surprise: "We knew there was going to be a significant increase in costs because the building is 40 percent bigger; it is air conditioned, and, whereas we used to have 300 computers, we now have 1,200 computers."

These utility costs were factored into the planning of the building as a way to save money, but due to the delayed handover of the building and other unforeseen problems, L-S has been unable to fully calculate the eventual cost.

"Things are being fine-tuned, replaced, and fixed, something that is long overdue. This is a problem we don't yet have control of and are very upset about. But we are now at the point where we can control the temperature, and we are able to turn things on and off.

It's unclear how much we will be able to control the cost, but, as of now, we are working with a new system, which may not be operating as efficiently as possible," adds Ritchie.

Ritchie noted that some negotiation between the contracting company and the school did occur, but the school refused to pay costs that accumulated over the summer while the building was still being tested under the supervision and ownership of the contracting company. There are also plans to meet with NSTAR, the electricity provider, to develop cost saving measures.

It is unclear how much the actual costs will exceed the amount budgeted. One issue is the validity and accuracy of the energy cost estimates originally given to the school by the electrical engineer and the designer of the building.

DECISION PENDING FOR SENIOR DRESS-UP DAY

CANDICE LEE

Following several controversial performances during this year's Senior Dress-Up Day, a meeting was held within the junior class Steering Committee regarding a possible need to censor, or possibly terminate, the long-standing tradition.

There was a split among the junior Steering Committee about the necessary course of action. Some agreed with a suggestion for a committee, but others opted to keep Senior Dress-Up Day performances unobstructed. Junior Steering Committee member Caitlin Jaeger was opposed to the formation of a committee and somewhat suspicious of the students. "They can tell the committee that they're going to do one thing, and then end up doing another," she noted.

Lauren Westling, another member of the junior Steering Committee, noted, "[Senior Dress-Up Day] is the one day when students can be more creative and unrestrained than any other day." Given the frivolous and unrestrictive nature of this occasion, interpreting what is "inappropriate" may also be difficult. As Jaeger added, "So many people can take it many different ways."

While there is little interest in immediately terminating the performances, the junior class is feeling some pressure to present themselves in good taste for the next Senior Dress-Up Day.

Kate Sherrer explained, "There's a feeling that we're under scrutiny, that we'd be held responsible if it gets taken away next year. I don't want to ruin it for the sophomore class, and the seniors didn't intentionally jeopardize Senior Dress-Up Day." This is in reference to the students who participated in the controversial Snow White performance. They have since apologized profusely, stating that any offense they committed was unintentional. This apology has been well-received by the school community and has vindicated the Snow White performers in many respects.

To ensure that the Senior Dress-Up Day performance tradition continues, Sherrer feels that the junior Steering Committee should talk to the class about the issue at the beginning of next year in order to emphasize the importance of having fun, but not being overly offensive. Other students agree with this approach. "We just want to censor it in a non-invasive way," said junior Emily Ziobrowski.

HOPESUDBURY TELETHON BOASTS SUCCESS

CHRISTINE DUGGAN

The HOPESudbury telethon, broadcast live from Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School on November 13, was extremely successful raising more than $48,000.

HOPESudbury is a humanitarian outreach project that was founded shortly after the September 11 attacks to help bring the community together and to aid the less fortunate.

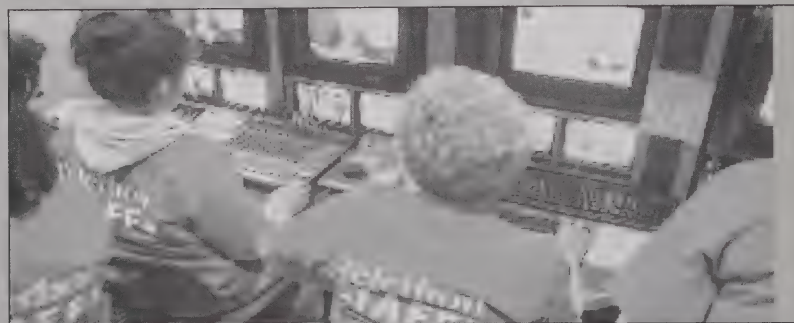

More than 200 volunteers participated on the air in over 50 performances or behind the scenes. The event was hosted by Nancy Eckersley, Gary Tanguay, John Brackett, and Larry O'Brien.

Acts ranging from Tae Kwan Do and dancing to musical performances and origami took place in the L-S auditorium. Other performances included L-S and Curtis student bands, the Friends of Broadway singing and dancing group, the Pop Warner cheerleading squad, and chefs from local restaurants.

Sudbury businesses and families donated hundreds of items, which were auctioned off during the Telethon. Some items put up for bid included various pieces of art, antiques, services, gift certificates, and tickets to sporting events.

The money raised will be distributed to MetroWest Harvest Meals on Wheels and the HOPESudbury Community Assistance Fund.

L-S STUDENT HOPES TO RETURN HOME

BY LAUREN KONOPACZ

For most of his life, Charles Adeng Chayor, a Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School senior, thought that his mother, brothers and sisters were dead, having been killed in the civil war that has plagued Sudan since 1983. The situation in Sudan has been intensifying since 1983, when fighting between the northern Sudanese army and the rebel guerilla armies of the south began. Charles left his home when he was only three years old and traveled throughout Sudan and Kenya with other so-called "lost boys." Three and a half years ago, Charles and some of the other boys came to the United States to escape the violence and make a better life for themselves.

Soon after arriving, Charles sent out a letter to the Red Cross. He included pictures of himself in the hope that he might be recognized and contacted by one of his relatives. This past fall he received word from an uncle that most members of his immediate family, whom he had long believed to be dead, were alive. His mother, brothers, and sisters were doing well and anxious to hear from him.

In response to this good news, Charles and some L-S students have launched an initiative to send him home this summer for a visit. Now that he is finished with college applications and midterms, Charles has more time to work at his after school job and to find other ways to achieve his goal of returning to Africa. His English class, headed by Annalisa Notari, has started the effort with a bake sale that has raised substantial amounts of money for awareness for Charles' upcoming trip. On February 15, his Global Issues class held another bake sale.

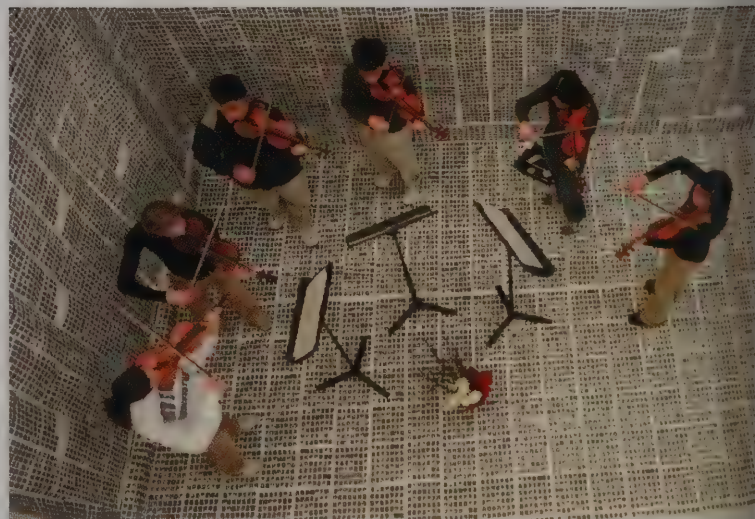

L-S TSUNAMI RELIEF FUND

BY ASHLEY ARAYAS

The Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School Tsunami relief fund came to a close at the end of January, far surpassing the original goal of $5,000. In the two week fundraising effort, the L-S community raised a total of $22,000. The money raised will be sent to Oxfam International to assist those affected by this tremendous natural disaster in Southeast Asia.

The enormous relief effort, held from the return to school on January 7 to January 21, demonstrated the L-S motto, "Think for yourself, but think of others."

"There was an unbelievable community response; L-S came together like I have never seen before. One of the most heartening things is how many individuals and groups contributed in one way or another," said history teacher, Bill Schechter. The activities that spanned these two weeks included henna tattoos, school dances, an emotional tsunami display, an international luncheon, musical acts, and a raffle of Patriots playoff tickets and memorabilia. Bottles for donations were placed around the school and in the cafeteria for donations.

Special thanks go to the Tsunami relief team, which helped organize and manage the fundraising events. Members of this group included Nanxi Ling, Christine Bachman, Gabe Brooks-Harris, To Washington, Nalini Margaitis, Jim Kelly, and Jaime Lam. Faculty members Erica Wilsen and Bill Schechter were also very involved in the relief effort. The fundraising ended with the successful faculty variety show.

Sophomore Taylor Berliant said, "I think that the tsunami relief was a great success, but I am ashamed that it takes 300,000 deaths for people to look around at the horrors in the world when they could be raising money all year to contribute to other problems across the globe."

L-S STUDENTS FIGHT CANCER FOUR DOLLARS AT A TIME

BY SVETLANA TUROVA

Yellow. Pink. Blue. These colors have made the commonly worn plastic bracelets more meaningful and important for cancer awareness. In its first year, the club FACT, Fighting Against Cancer Together, has demonstrated various efforts, including selling cancer bracelets, to open the eyes of the Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School population to the truth about cancer. But what is it that makes cancer even more of a reality at L-S? The experiences of FACT presidents and L-S seniors Ashley McQuillin and Chrissy Lee help to explain their inspirations for founding the club, and the role of cancer in their lives.

Two years ago, L-S alumni Sarah, Elizabeth, and Rachel Sletzinger conceived the idea to start a club which would boost cancer awareness in the L-S community. Around the same time, Lee's mother passed away after more than a five-year battle with breast cancer. Having seen her mother go through chemotherapy and radiation, Lee felt strongly that there should be a place in school where students could find support when dealing with cancer. McQuillin finds herself in a similar position. With a strong family history of breast cancer, and an aunt that passed away from the illness a couple of years back, McQuillin has become accustomed to both dealing and discussing the issue of cancer. Her mother was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1996, and after severe treatments in recent years, the cancer is in remission. The friendship that exists between Lee and McQuillin has allowed them to see and to understand the difficult problems that they faced.

"Cancer has impacted my everyday life because I had to grow up with a sick mother, and now I have to try to survive without her," said Lee. Convening to discuss cancer and raise awareness has certainly contributed to both Lee's and McQuillin's personal "survival." These struggles add a personal touch to an issue that is unfamiliar to many other young people.

Undoubtedly, FACT's success rests on the personal desires of L-S student's like Lee and McQuillin. The response to the club also supports how their modest attitude but undying perseverance fuels the club. There are approximately 20 members so far, with at least 15 active members. For its Breast Cancer Walk event, FACT raised 500 dollars.

FACT has also raised another 500 dollars from selling four dollar pink and blue bracelets similar to the popular "Livestrong" bracelet. "There are hundreds of types of cancers out there," Lee commented, "but if we can raise awareness for a few of them, people will have a better understanding." The purpose of the pink and blue bracelets is to increase awareness about breast and ovarian cancer, respectively. Lee hopes that every time students see the bracelets, they will be reminded of the millions of people battling cancer. The money collected from these sales and other events this year will be donated to various cancer organizations.

The bracelets also serve to remind those who wear and notice them that it might be time to consider their own health. McQuillin explained that with her family cancer history, it is essential that she go for checkups as soon as she turns 18 years old. Lee also said that her mother may have survived if she had been diagnosed some time earlier. "The earlier you find out, the better chance of survival you have"

17TH JIMMY MACK MARCH RAISES MONEY AND AWARENESS

BY JULIE BERGSTEIN

The 17th annual Jimmy Mack March to defeat AIDS was held on Sunday, October 17. Although it was a bit chilly, the weather was beautiful, and the walk was an overall great success.

Eighteen years ago, Jimmy McIntyre, the Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School alumnus after whom the walk was named, was the first L-S student to die from AIDS. Since then, nine other L-S alumni have passed away as a result of the disease: Brad Truesdale, George McGover, Matt Holland, John Lafler, Peter Ehrenfeld, Charles Reade, Stephen Porter, Thomas Hammond, Sean O'Neil, and Eric Gupton. Since 1987, L-S students and teachers have walked to raise money for AIDS research and to remember those former students.

Around 96 people gathered to take part in the ten kilometer (six mile) march. "It was great," says MLK Action leader Joanna Crawford. "There was a whole bunch of people of all ages." She then went on to explain other elements of the walk, such as the snack stand set up at Stone Farm by L-S students to raise additional money.

Last year, more than $6,000 was donated to the cause. MLK Action Project participants tabulated the money pledged from the walk this year. So far $5,400 were raised. However, with more donations coming in, MLK hopes to top last year's amount.

GOSPEL CONCERT HITS MAGICAL NOTES

JOSH DEANE

I sat down in the Rogers-Kirshner Auditorium on a cold Thursday night with the intention of hearing a few songs performed by the Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School Gospel Choir before making my way to the boys' basketball game. Two hours later I found myself dancing in front of the stage screaming, "praise the Lord!" with my hands above my head, wondering if I had just found God.

Titled "We Made It!" the concert began with a wild introduction by Harvard gospel choir alumnus Teddy Maynard, who had everyone up out of their seats dancing and cheering before the music had even started. The L-S Gospel Choir was the first to take the stage, and they set the standard for the night. The L-S group, which is open to anyone who wants to sing, sounded like they had been singing together for years and warmed the crowd up for the rest of the night. The Weston Gospel Choir followed with their set, bringing a band along to accompany them. The L-S Concert Choir then took the stage, and the crowd once again was brought to their feet as Ian Sanders-Fleming dug deep, hitting notes lower than Cuba Gooding Jr.'s career after Snow Dogs. Next was Jubilee, a group from Newton North that is not so open to the public but requires auditions, showing why as they mesmerized the crowd with their perfectly executed eight-part harmonies. Their performance was highlighted by a beautiful rendition of "Amazing Grace," led by a female soloist whose number I am still trying to get.

The events preceding Jubilee's performance were nothing short of magical, and I am confident in saying that the Harvard University Kuumba Singers' performance was the single most uplifting set of music ever created. From the opening notes, I was overcome by happiness, sinking deep into my seat as the hypnotizing chorus danced into my head. The crowd shared my sentiment, and the occasional "Amen!" and "Tell it to me again, sister!" could be heard over the silky voices. The Kuumba Singers finished the night by inviting the Jubilee singers on stage and turned the auditorium into one giant soul party, getting everyone moving to the music.

The night of music was more than satisfying, and all groups put on an impressive show, with the Kuumba Singers leading the way. I would encourage everyone to see the Kuumba Singers at least once in their lifetime, because before that indescribable moment, you have not truly lived.

FACULTY TAKE CENTER STAGE FOR 3RD ANNUAL L-S VARIETY SHOW

BY MIKE WRIGHT

The third annual Lincoln-Sudbury Faculty Variety Show took place Friday, January 28 in the Rogers-Kirshner Auditorium. The first act of the program began with two instrumental numbers performed by Ken Kimura (Media Arts), Thomas Grandprey (Music), and Bill Nicholson (Music), including a song written by Kimura himself. Also in act one, counselor Midge Callahan and Rich Berger (Language) performed a play by John Guare called "The Loveliest Afternoon of the Year." The short piece is about a man who meets a woman in a park and tells her all kinds of crazy stories that she doesn't believe, but they all turn out to be true. Every year Callahan and Berger have performed a dramatic piece at the Faculty Variety Show, but every year it gets stranger and funnier. The second-to-last performance of the act was a tap dance by Lisa Lupinacci and Kim Schultz (Language) to Madonna's "Music." The final performance of the act was a definite crowd favorite: Nicholson, South housemaster Eleanor Burke, Sarah Flandro, Helen Sotiriou (Math), Tom Danko (Science), Chris Belmont (Wellness), Alfonso Abadia (Language), and Jan Carvallo (Health) sang and danced to "Stayin' Alive" in full disco attire, accompanied by L-S junior Nick Andrews on the piano.

Act two began with yet another set of musical numbers, performed by West housemaster Iain Ryrie, John Germanotta (Drama), Grandprey, Kimura, and Ryrie's son Eric. The band played three songs flawlessly, including a Ryrie original. Another highlight of the night's performance included the Faculty Improv. group's hilarious dramatic piece, entitled "Teacher's Nightmare," demonstrating several aggravations teachers deal with daily from students. The group consists of Connie Patten (Science), Tim Jason (English), Eric Eversley (METCO), Paul Sarapas (FATA), Tanisha Tate (METCO), counselor John Flynn, and Germanotta. Mark Santoro (Campus Aide) next performed two songs, one of which he wrote himself. The final performance of the show was a song performed by "John Ritchie and the Delighters," including retired business director Carleen Shaldone, Pam Shreve (Asst. to Supt.), Nicole Stewart (METCO), Grandprey and Germanotta.

In addition, the show featured no-less-stellar performances by Jason, Sandy Crawford (History) and family, Whitney Davidson (History), Michael Mayer (English), Bob Kniffin (History/English), and Patten. Overall, the show was excellent, and the audience turnout was better than in past years. All proceeds benefited the L-S Tsunami Relief Fund and the Foundation for Educators at Lincoln-Sudbury.

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

BY JULIE TRIBA

By now, we've seen that the LSB Players production of Shakespeare play would be complete without great music, dazzling acting and creative costumes.

The Players kicked off the 2004-2005 season and opened the new Rogers-Kirchner Auditorium with a spectacular showing of A Midsummer Night's Dream. Directed by Judy and Bill Plott, with technical direction by John Germanotta, the production showcased the technical amenities of the new theater and delivered a sparkling inaugural performance.

The cast featured several Players veterans alongside talented newcomers. Christine Bachman, Ian Sanders-Fleming, Kara Nicholson and Anson Biller starred as four lovestruck but occasionally confused Athenians tangled in a convoluted and magically enhanced love triangle. The problems begin when Hermia (Nicholson) insists on marrying Lysander (Biller) despite the wishes of her father Egeus (Jack Darcey) that she instead marry his choice, Demetrius (Sanders-Fleming). When Hermia and Lysander run away with plans to elope, Demetrius follows Hermia; Helena (Bachman), in love with Demetrius despite the fact that he once spurned her in favor of Hermia and now regularly ignores her, goes after him. Off in the forest, spirit king Oberon (Ben Page) and his mischievous friend Puck (Shira Hoffman) pity Helena and plan to cast a spell on Demetrius to make him adore her instead of Hermia. However, when Puck accidentally puts the spell on Lysander, he awakes from a nap in love with Helena instead of Hermia. To fix the problem Oberon puts the spell on Demetrius, for whom it was intended in the first place, and suddenly both men are running after a confused Helena, leaving alone an equally bewildered Hermia, whose entertaining tantrums were expertly handled by Nicholson.

After the four fight over each other with no resolution, they fall asleep; Puck appears and corrects the spell on Lysander. By the time they wake up, everything has been straightened out and when Egeus comes across the four in the forest, he relents and allows Hermia to marry Lysander when he sees that Demetrius actually loves Helena instead.

On a collision course with this confusion is a separate group of outrageous characters - the Rude Mechanicals, a group of Athenian workers preparing a play to be performed at the impending wedding of Athenian duke Theseus (Nikhil Mehta) and queen Hippolyta (Vivienne Brand.) Director Peter Quince (Gabe Brooks-Harris) has big plans for the show but is constantly interrupted by his star Nick Bottom (Gerald McElroy), who sincerely and hysterically believes he could play every part himself. When they meet to rehearse in the forest, Bottom appears not knowing his head is now that of a donkey, courtesy of a recent run-in with Puck.

When the rest of the actors run away in terror, Bottom comes across fairy queen Titania (Alanna Pithis); she immediately falls in love with him, Oberon having put a spell on her after an earlier argument between the couple. She and her fairies fawn over Bottom, confused about all the attention but happy to be in the center of it. However, pitying her, Oberon finally decides enough is enough with the love potion and releases the disgusted Titania from the spell; Puck reluctantly removes the donkey's head from Bottom and he returns none the wiser to the Rude Mechanicals, who are about to start the show for the three newly married couples, the four young lovers having joined Theseus and Hippolyta for their weddings. Madcap hilarity ensues as the flustered Quince can hardly watch his actors' antics, notably those of Francis Flute (Mike Wright), who struggles to give a pitch-perfect performance as the female lead of the Mechanicals' play, and the indefatigable Bottom, who delivers a death scene worthy of its own article.

If the seniors' performances in this show are any indication, they have a spectacular farewell season ahead of them. In their final musical, they gave uniformly convincing and impressive performances to establish this year's LSB Players' graduating class as a talented one that will continue to leave its mark on the drama program. The four principals were alternately melancholy and hysterical as their temperamental characters and carried their scenes effortlessly. The Rude Mechanicals were a riot as their own little show within the show, and Page and Pithis commanded the stage during their scenes along with a quartet of punk-rocker fairies.

As always, the show was made an L-S original by a great soundtrack. The opening "Dancing in the Street" was the energetic prelude to the show and to the rest of the Motown hits. "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" showcased powerful lead vocals by Page and Pithis, as "Where Did Our Love Go" did for Nicholson. McElroy's rendition of "My Girl" and Bachman's take on Supremes hit "Stop! In the Name of Love" closed out the first act. "Midnight Hour" cut the lights to spotlight Dave Wylen's explosive vocals against a backdrop of bobbing glowsticks on the dark stage. Finally, the happy ending was accompanied by finale "Some Day We'll Be Together." The always impressive instrumentals were handled by "Our Fairy Band:" Chris McCarthy (guitar), Nathan Banks (drums), Andrew Clark (guitar), Jeremy Murray (percussion), Brendan Quinn (piano) and Mikey Taylor (saxophone) were joined by music teacher Tom Grandprey on bass.

The new stage, substantially larger than that of the old Rogers Theater, afforded the actors more space, which they used to their full advantage in the four-way chases between the lovestruck protagonists. The scenery consisted of three tall rotating triangular panels that made for quick scene changes and added a new dimension to the expansive space. The new theater will likely lend more flexibility to the staging of upcoming performances; we will see this soon, as the next production, Michael Frayn's comedy Noises Off, will be performed.

GREEN DAY RAGES BACK ONTO PUNK SCENE

BY TIM DINGMAN

"American Idiot," is a masterpiece. Although not quite the same as favorites "Dookie" and "Insomniac," or less popular albums like "Kerplunk" and "1039/Smoothed Out Slappy Hours," Green Day retains its punk image. And though it doesn't sound as much like their other works, "American Idiot" still rages about society, the government, and a whole mess of other topics. Enough about genre disputes. Let's talk about the album.

The first track, also titled "American Idiot," is the first hit off the new CD. It's a fast song with catchy lyrics about media control. The lyrics aren't particularly inspiring, but the song is definitely one of the top three on the album.

Track two, "Jesus of Suburbia," starts the album's "rock opera," which incorporates a story into its songs. This track, about nine minutes long, talks about stages in the life of the aforementioned "Jesus." There are five little mini-songs that make up the track, each mini-song having its own lyrics, beat, riffs, and so on. This is another of the three best songs on the album.

Tracks three and four, "Holiday" and "Boulevard of Broken Dreams," are decent, but not real highlights. The next track, "Are We The Waiting," is a slow song. However, the slow chanting at the end of the song is a different feel from older Green Day songs.

The sixth track on the album is entitled "St. Jimmy," and it's the other song on my top three list. This song is pretty fast and resembles Green Day songs from the "Dookie" era, in both the lyric and musical style departments. St. Jimmy is the second of three characters in the opera.

Tracks seven, eight, nine, and 10 are pretty good but not the best songs on the CD. Number 11, however, is my least favorite. For all of you who loved the slow acoustic hit "Good Riddance/Time of Your Life," this should be a favorite. Although it's not about the same thing, "Wake Me Up When September Ends" is another slow and emotional song. This is not what I wanted! For the love of God Green Day, do not go emo on me. I say next album, shoot for less depressing slow song if you must put one in, though preferably there will be none!

"Homecoming," the second nine-minute mini-song collection, doesn't measure up to the first one. The first and last mini-song are filler-like, though I like the last half of the second one. I love the third and fourth, called "Nobody Likes You" and "Rock and Roll Girlfriend." The former was written by bassist Mike Dirnt, and the latter by drummer Tré Cool (that's really his name.) They both mark a stylistic change from most of the songs in terms of lyrics, but not too different in terms of sound. But it's very cool that other people wrote songs for the CD, not just Billie Joe Armstrong.

"Whatsername" is the thirteenth and final track. Whatsername is the third character in the rock opera, and has appeared in previous tracks. The song is slow and emotional, which can be a good way to close a CD. However, I still don't particularly like its emo approach.

Basically, buy the album. It's worth the 12 or so dollars. Yep. Twelve dollars.

MOORE FUELS THE FLAMES OF DEBATE WITH 'FAHRENHEIT'

BY SHAINA LOWE

Moore opens the film with commentary on the debatable election in Florida and subsequently takes the audience on a journey to the war in Iraq.

Moore's first film since Bowling for Columbine, Fahrenheit takes its title from the Ray Bradbury classic Fahrenheit 451, regarded by some to be a work of social criticism that warns against censorship. Where Bradbury wrote that 451 degrees was the temperature at which things burn, Moore thinks of the title of his film as the temperature at which freedom begins.

It is more powerful than its predecessor, yet Moore has a tendency to overstress his points, which often serves only to discredit what he is trying to prove. For example, Moore shows footage of President Bush sitting in a Florida classroom minutes after the attacks on the World Trade Center, with an accompanying Moore voiceover criticizing the president for not acting more quickly. Instead of feeling contempt towards the president for not realizing the seriousness of the attacks, as Moore wants the audience to do, it was easier to feel sympathy for the president.

However, the bulk of Fahrenheit is eye-opening. Moore does an excellent job of outlining Bush's ties to Saudi Arabia, the Taliban and the bin Laden family. He also shows the deficiencies in the Bush administration's anti-terrorist intelligence prior to September 11th. Perhaps the most developed aspect of Fahrenheit is Moore's attack on the war in Iraq. Moore shows footage of dead Iraqi children, soldiers disillusioned about fighting in Iraq, and the brutality of war. One soldier even said he would rather go to jail than go back to Iraq. To prove that war in Iraq is "a rich man's war, a poor man's fight," Moore went to Capitol Hill and asked senators and Congressmen if they would consider enlisting their children to go to Iraq. Only one had a child enlisted.

The most effective feature focuses on Lila Lipscomb, a woman from Moore's hometown of Flint, Michigan. Moore follows her story, emphasizing her diminishing faith in the military. Flint is a very poor city and Lipscomb often encouraged kids to enroll in the military as a means of improving their life and getting a good education. However, after her son was killed in Iraq, her views of the military completely changed. She now travels around the United States speaking out against the war.

Regardless of a person's political views, Fahrenheit 9/11 is an important film to see because it forces the viewer to think. While not everything Moore portrays may be completely accurate, it shows the audience an opinion very different from that of most of the media and the Bush administration. It is up to the audience to formulate their own opinions. The strongest aspect of the movie is its message encouraging people to become more aware about the Bush administration and the war in Iraq.

Life is like a day at the Beach

Go surfing! Catch a wave and ride!
It takes courage. It might be scary at first but it's worth it!

Ride out each wave and drift back to shore for a rest...
We'll miss you but you can always come home!

Watch out for sharks!
Danger lurks - "Buddy system for life!"

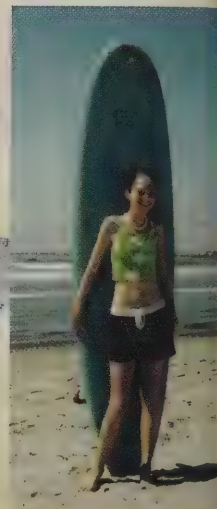

Don't forget to wear your sunscreen...
Put on the full armor of God and trust Him always

Dear Brooke,

We wish they all could be California Girls like you! You are sunshine, personified!
You bring warmth to all whose lives you touch.

Dearest Dana,

From the time you could say "you're not the boss of me"

We knew you had a spirit that was independent and free,

A keen sense of justice, what's right and
what's wrong,

A dimpled smile that can belt out a song.

A strength and a wisdom beyond your years.
A super driver who can handle those gears.
And now you are ready to make your way.
There isn't much more we need to say-
Just bear with this one piece of parental advice.

For good roommate relations, keep your room
'picked up' and nice.

We love you!

In my young son's eyes I am a hero
I am strong and wise and I know no fear
But the truth is plain to see
He was sent to rescue me
I see who I wanna be
In my young son's eyes

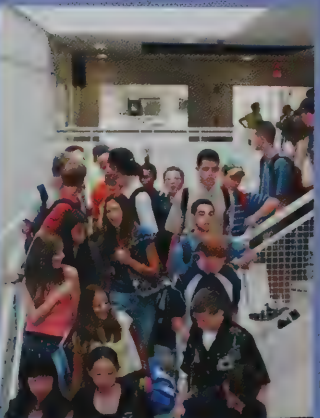

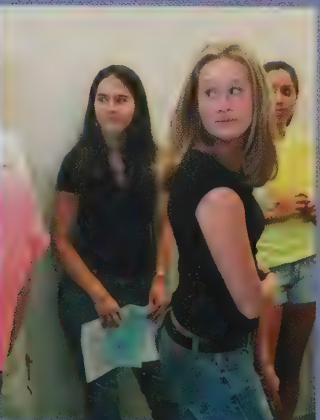

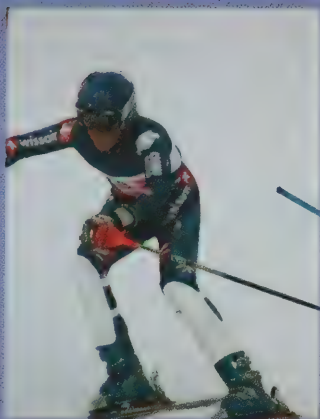

In my young son's eyes everyone is equal
Darkness turns to light and the world is at peace
This miracle God gave to me
Gives me strength when I am weak
I find reason to believe
In my young son's eyes

And when he wraps his hand around my finger
Oh it puts a smile in my heart
Everything becomes a little clearer
I realize what life is all about
It's hangin' on when your heart has had enough
It's giving more when you feel like giving up
I've seen the light
It's in my young son's eyes

May you be blessed with good friends.
May you learn to be a good friend to yourself.
May you be able to journey to that place
in your soul where there is great love, warmth, feeling, and forgiveness.
May this change you.
May it transfigure that which is negative,
distant, or cold in you.
May you be brought in to the real passion,
kinship, and affinity of belonging.
May you treasure your friends.
May you be good to them, and may you be there for them; may they bring you all the blessings, challenges, truth, and light that you need for your journey.
May you never be isolated.
May you always be in the gentle nest of belonging with your anam cara.

Dear Petey,

I can't believe how fast time has flown. It seems like only minutes ago we were playing "Gazpacho the Cat in the circle. I watch in awe as you pop and lock across the dance floor, mentor dozens of kids on the court and send your friends into fits of hysterical laughter with your sense of humor. I am amazed by your ability to carve your own path and to follow your instincts.. Remember how impressive that is and don't doubt yourself. No matter how far apart we are next year, or forever after, always know that I am your biggest fan, and your best friend. I love you and I am so proud of you. Keep your eyes on whatever prize you choose. I can't wait to watch you reach your goals. "If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost. That is where they should be. CAITLIN

October 24, 1980... The day our little girl joined our family and brought us more joy than words can describe. And that joy has only grown over the years...

You have always lived life to the fullest and put your whole self into everything you do... from your love of animals, loyalty to friends, work and school, determination at soccer and tennis! The birthdays have flown by and our little girl has grown up into the most wonderful young woman!

Now you are ready to spread your wings. Follow your dreams and always keep reaching for the sky! And remember, "...when you get the chance to sit it out or dance... we hope you dance." We couldn't be prouder of you!

You will always be our "champion"!

We love you so much. Mom and Dad

Caitlin, these past 18 years have been one great journey for us. Now that you are growing up and entering college, I know that our new journey through life will be an even greater one.

Good luck next year, Love, Brian

For each petal on the shamrock, this brings a wish your way.

Go! Just Go!
 Right, left, wrong, right -
 Go!
 No stopping and looking back.
 No what-ifs. Just Go!
 This is something new.
 There are no mistakes except inaction. Go!
 You're scared to do this?
 I'm scared you won't do it.
 Go, even if it's in the completely wrong direction at first.
 Say your prayers and Go!
 So What are you waiting for?
 Get a move On!
 ALIVE...

WE'RE ALL TERMINAL.
 Some of us are just lucky enough to know it. Life is a spiritual journey. And sometimes all you have to do is show up and have a little faith that something completely amazing is possible any day. And every now and then, right when you least expect it, something amazing does happen.
 There are no wrong moves - you'll learn from everything.
 And you are no more in control than a feather is of the wind. All you know is that the force moving you is so strong that you just hang on in wonder. There is nothing but the moment and the sense of dancing with angels.

Dear Scott, We can't believe you are off to college so soon!! We are very proud of your accomplishments. Our family has been blessed because of you. You have given us so much joy, laughter and of course excitement...Love you Scooter, Mom, Dad, Steve and Ash xoxo

Possibly the most valuable lesson you have learned in the past four years is that life is unpredictable, and you have the flexibility and strength of character necessary to succeed.

Your uniqueness draws people to you – so stay true to yourself.

You have worked hard, played hard, and made us all proud of you!

Mom, Dad, Becca, Poppy, Motley & Spence (who will greatly miss you at L/S)

Rachael

You have gone from 0 to 18 in what feels like a split second for us and we are incredibly proud of what you have become. You are a beautiful, strong, and independent individual with the world at your fingertips. Your "Core" is one of honesty and integrity. You have known what you wanted with your life's goals forever and with your strength and determination we are sure that you will achieve them.

Challenge yourself. Take risks. Laugh. Continue to be a caring individual. You have and will continue to make us all proud. You have accomplished so much.

Love,
Dad, Amy, Estelle, Dave and Leah

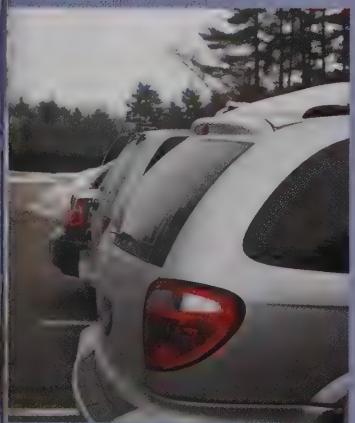

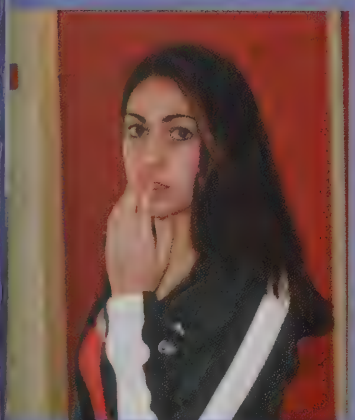

Andrew

Congratulations! We are very proud of all that you have accomplished. Let your determination and values always guide you!

We love you,
Dad, Mom and Matt

Congratulations Nanxi!

You have been a joy and a gift from God in our life. You have given us so much to be proud of!

Surely goodness and love will follow you all the days of your life!

Love,
Mom, Dad and Grandpas & Grandmas

Jackie,

We love you so much! Keep up your wonderful ways, the beautiful smile and your positive attitude. Great things are bound to happen.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Katie and Mary

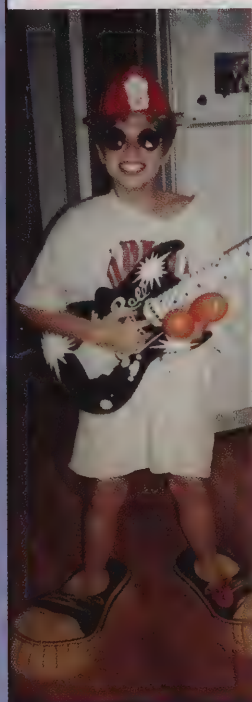

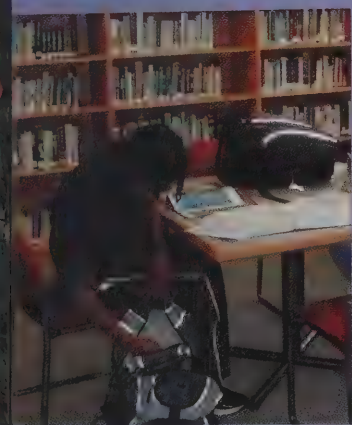

Go confidently in the direction of your dreams.
Live the life you have imagined.
Thoreau

Liz,

Congratulations!

Love, Mom, Dad & Steph

Congratulations, Ben!

Your love of life, caring and determination will take you far. Always keep your sense of humor and be true to yourself. We are so proud of you!

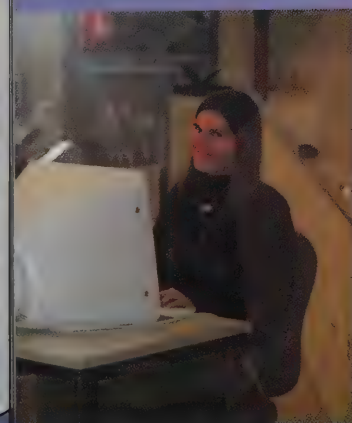

Love,
Mom, Dad and Alex XOXO

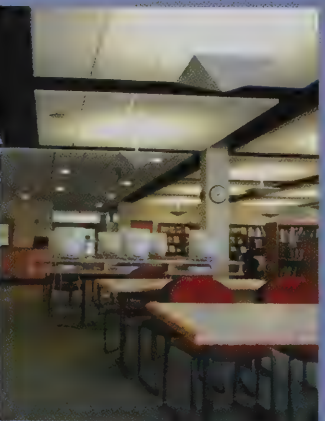

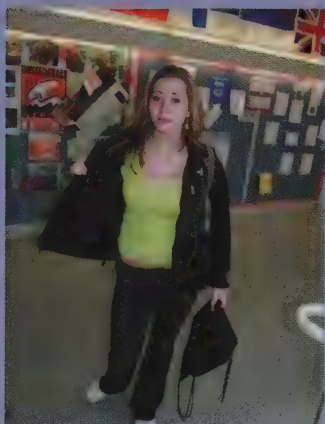

Chris,

We're very proud of you, son-
...what you have done and who you are
We will always be there along the way
May God bless you.

Much Love,
Mom and Dad

That was us then...

Hey, Chris

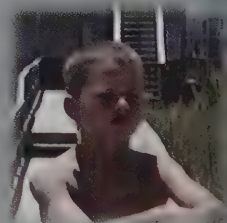

You are a great brother and deserve all the success you've had. We'll miss you next year!

Love,
Ryan and Meghan

This is us now...

SCOTT

We love you!
Congratulations!
Job well done!

Dana,

We are so proud of the young woman that you've become in eighteen short years... May all your dreams become your reality!

With much love,
Mom, Dad & Nicole

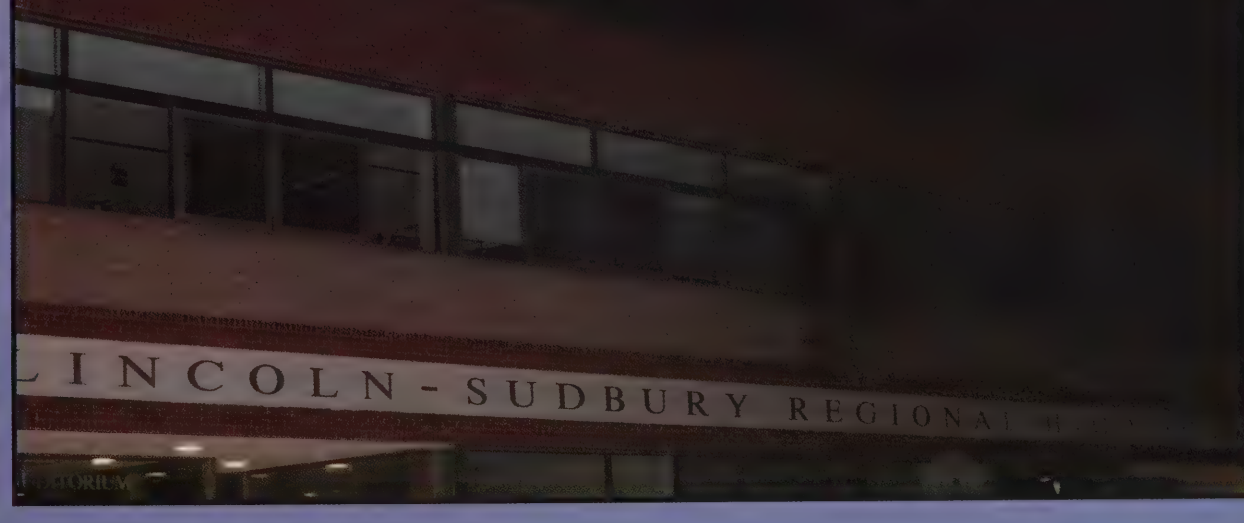

CONGRATULATIONS KATELYN!
Ever since you were a little girl you have brought smiles to our faces with your determination and enthusiasiam
A new journey is about to begin and
In the words of Thoreau...
Go confidently in the direction of your dreams.
Live life as you have imagined.
Love,
Mom, Dad, Tim and Mackenzie

Congratulations Class of 2005!

THE FORUM

The Student Newspaper of Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High-School

◆ 'Don't start with the shmooze, start with the news.' ◆

SEPTEMBER 2004- JUNE 2005

HEY EVERYONE,

Dance parties. Holiday celebrations. Long drives to Wendys. Sing alongs. Doesn't sound like your average school newspaper, does it? We're definitely one of a kind.

We just wanted to take the opportunity to thank everyone for making this year so amazing. Although we faced many difficult challenges--a new school, a new office and a new program--we came together, shared great times, and produced a quality newspaper. To the underclassmen: keep the standard high, have fun, and work hard. To everyone else: thank you. We couldn't be happier or prouder of the Forum.

Dear Reader:

You are now at the end of the book. Do you understand the theme yet? Here in DyadWorld, we live it. We are often taking 2 steps forward and 1 step back. Or, retracing our steps especially around deadline time. Or, doing some sidestepping. Our next step will be OUT THE DOOR!
